

Welcome to Kiddash™

Glad you're here. Here's to calmer weeks ahead.

Tired of trying to stay on top of endless kids' activities?

Kiddash turns every email, text, and flyer into one shared, organized view for your family.

This guide covers setup, gives you a tour of the app, and answers the questions new families ask most.

Download the app

You can download the app for free using the link or QR code. Kiddash is also available as a web application, which you can access through your browser.

How to get started in 6 steps

The steps below show mobile navigation. On the web app, there's no Family tab: click your profile icon in the top left of the page to find these same settings.

1 Add your kids

Go to Family and add each child. Add a name, an optional nickname and school, a tag color, and a birthday if you'd like. That tag color follows your child everywhere in the app, so you can spot their events at a glance.

2 Set up your family name

By default, your family is called "Your Family." Go to Family > Settings > Family name to change it to something you'll recognize, like "The Garcia Family." It's the name caregivers and grandparents will see once they're invited.

3 Set up your timezone

Go to Family > Settings > Timezone. Select your timezone so times show correctly for your family.

4 Save your forwarding address

You will forward emails to plans@kiddash.app. This address lives in Family > Settings > Forward emails to, with a Copy button next to it. Save it as a contact, then forward any school email, camp update, or activity schedule straight to it.

5 Add Kiddash events to your calendar

Your unique calendar link is available at Family > Settings > Calendar link. Use the Copy button to copy your calendar link, then add it to Google or Apple Calendar. First sync can take a while.

6 Invite your family

Go to Family > Invite family member. Send an invite by email and choose a role: Parent, Co-parent, Caregiver, or Grandparent. You can track which invitations are pending, redeemed, expired, or revoked.

A quick tour on where to find things

Kiddash has four tabs along the bottom and one button that creates everything.

Today

Your day, at a glance.

Shows what's actually happening today, plus any tasks that are due. View event times and who's driving, and tap the address for directions. Check the box on a task card to mark it as done.

Dashboard

Your week, organized.

Your Weekly Briefing sits on top: a plain-language summary you can hide when you don't need it. Below it, everything upcoming is grouped into This week and Later, with filters for All or one child at a time.

Review

Nothing goes live unchecked.

Anything Kiddash extracts from a forwarded email, pasted text, or an upload waits here. Confirm, Edit, or Discard. The tab badge tells you how many are waiting.

Family

Your people and your settings.

Invite and view members and their roles, manage your kids, and set your timezone and calendar link.

The + button (Add New)

Four ways to add something on mobile.

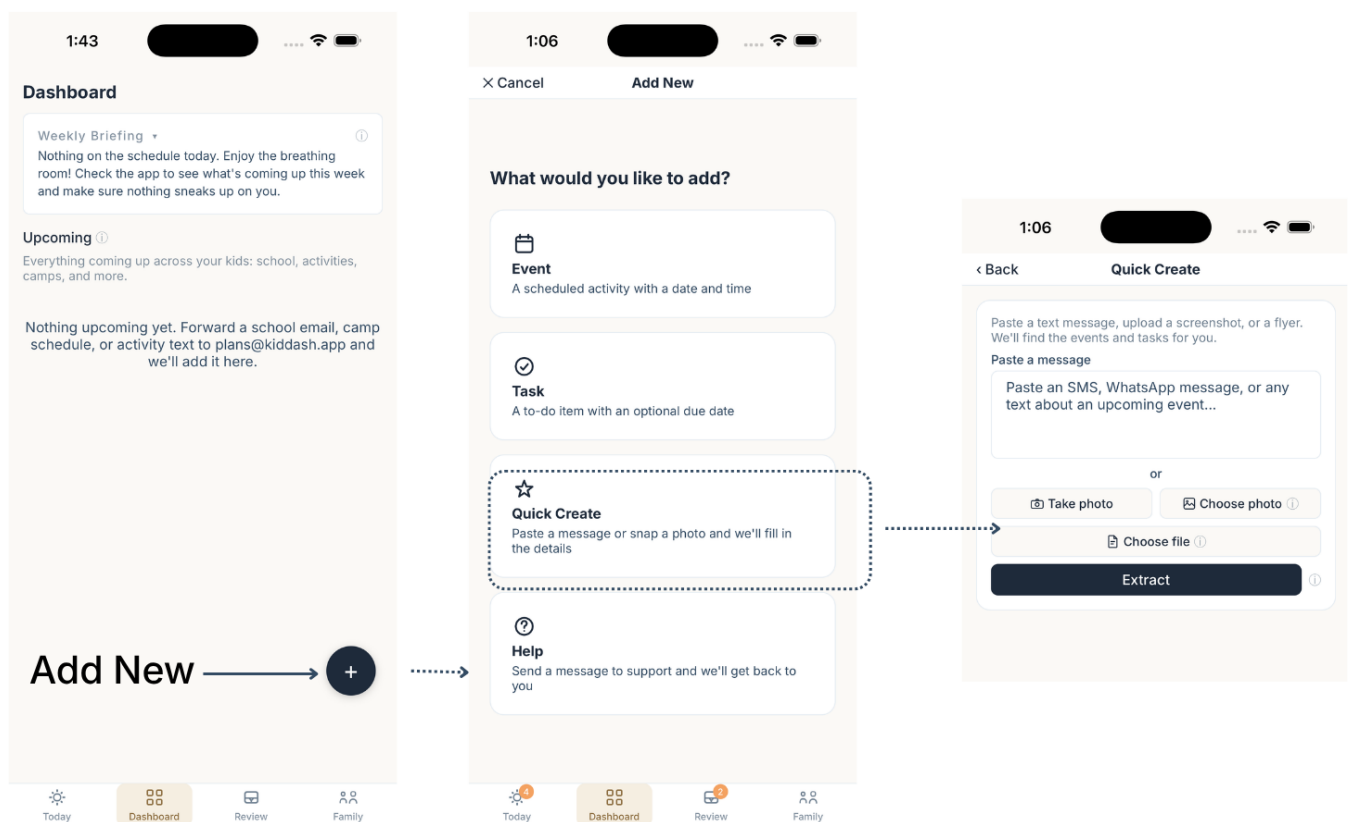

Event for a scheduled activity with a date and time.

Task for a to-do with an optional due date.

Quick Create to paste a message or snap a photo and let Kiddash fill in the details.

Help to send us a support message.

On the web app, use the Add new button on the dashboard to create tasks and events from scratch. Or use the Quick Create button at the top to automatically extract events from text, images, or documents.

DASHBOARD > ADD NEW > QUICK CREATE

Amber means attention required

Kiddash stays quiet by design. Amber appears only when something genuinely needs you: a schedule conflict, a task still waiting to be done, or an item sitting in Review. Because it's used so sparingly, when you see amber it's always worth a look.

Going further

Editing events

Edit the title, start and end times, a location and full address, notes, which kids it's for, and who's driving. Need a driver who isn't in your family? Type their name under Drivers and tap Add. You can also duplicate an event, convert it to a task, or delete it. A small  icon on a card means there's a note attached. Tap in to read it.

To make an event recurring, tap Make recurring. Pick the days it repeats on and when it ends. From then on, you can tap Save all events in series to apply changes to the whole group, or save changes for a single occurrence only. Recurring events show a  icon on the card so you can spot them at a glance.

Editing tasks

Edit the title, due date, notes, which kids it relates to, and who it's assigned to. Mark it as done when it's handled. Tap Convert to event and it moves across without retyping.

Conflicts

When two things overlap, Kiddash flags both sides in amber and names the conflicting item, for example, "Conflicts with School Pickup." Your Weekly Briefing calls out the week's conflicts too, so you can sort them out early.

Your calendar link

Go to Family > Settings > Calendar link and copy it, then add it in Google or Apple Calendar to see your kids' events alongside everything else. The full details stay in Kiddash, and the first sync can take a while. Don't share your unique calendar link with anyone. You can reset the link at any time, which stops anyone from using the old one.

Sharing a single event

Open any event and tap the share icon  to send it as a calendar file. Handy for a coach, a grandparent, or anyone who isn't in your Kiddash family.

FAQ

How do I get things into Kiddash?

Three ways: forward an email to plans@kiddash.app, paste a text message into Quick Create, or upload a photo, screenshot, or document.

Why is something showing up in amber?

Amber is Kiddash's one signal for "this needs attention": a schedule conflict, an unfinished task, or something waiting in Review. Everything else stays calm on purpose, so amber is never something you can miss.

Who else can see our family's schedule?

Only the people you invite. You pick a role for each one: Parent, Co-parent, Caregiver, or Grandparent. They can see the shared schedule and be assigned to events and tasks. You can review and revoke invitations in Family > Invite family member.

Can I see Kiddash events on my calendar?

Yes. Copy your calendar link from Family > Settings and add it as a subscribed calendar in your calendar app. Your kids' events show up there, with links to Kiddash for full details.

Can I share a single event or task with someone outside of my Kiddash family?

You can share any event as a calendar file. Open the event, then tap the share icon  at the top of the screen. Tasks can't be shared this way yet.

Is my kids' information private?

Only the parents and caregivers you explicitly invite can see your family's information. For the full details on how your data is handled, see our Privacy Policy.

Is Kiddash free to use?

Yes. Every feature in Kiddash today is free to use. We're planning to add optional paid features down the road, and we'll always be upfront about what's free and what's not before anything changes.

Is there an Android version?

Kiddash is available on the web through your browser and as an iPhone app. An Android app is coming soon. In the meantime, you can use our web app at kiddash.app.

Something looks wrong, or I have a question or request. Who do I contact?

Tap the + button, choose Help, and send us a message. Or visit kiddash.app. We read every message and we'd love to hear from you.

Forward your first school email to plans@kiddash.app and see it land in Review.
